

Transport Troubles

Sponsored by Game of Actual Life

Overview: A whole-class activity which helps children talk about different forms of transport.

Time: 10 minutes

Equipment required: A whiteboard and pens or a large piece of paper and pens.

Benefits:

- Helps children understand forms of transport.
- Encourages thought about alternative forms of transport.
- Promotes thought about environmentally friendly ways of travelling.

Part One:

1. Ask the children to name five different ways to get from one place to another (car, train, plane, bike, scooter, walking)
2. Write them down on the left side of the board.
3. Ask children to name five reasons to travel (holiday, work, shopping, school, hobbies etc.).
4. Write these down on the right side of the board.

Part Two:

1. Invite the children to match one form of transport to one of the reasons to travel.
2. Ask children to explain what makes this method appropriate.
3. Ask them whether each type is needed e.g. "do we HAVE to use a plane to go on holiday?".
4. Ask them to come up with an alternative form of transport for each reason.
